ANZAC DAY SET IN CLAY
A Personal Ode
Horace Petty Estate in South Yarra

19 April 2017

Young residents of the Horace Petty Estate in South Yarra were involved in a special project aimed at setting Anzac Day in clay.

The project, facilitated by Freemasons Victoria and artist Sankar Nadeson, held an event for the residents to create special Anzac commemorative plaques which will ultimately become part of a public installation in the City of Melbourne.

The activation events leading up to Anzac Day and a major program on the day itself aims to draw attention to the recognition of all people in all conflicts and their affected families and children through the creative process and discussion.

Sankar Nadeson working with the children from the Horace Petty Estate.
Participants creating special Anzac commemorative plaques.

Sankar Nadeson with Freemasons Victoria CEO, Jane Sydenham-Clarke at the Horace Petty Estate event.
Creating the special Anzac commemorative plaques at the Horace Petty Estate in South Yarra.